

ABSTRACT

The pixels of an image sensor array can be readout (84, 85) in $m \times n$ blocks (m, n) that are compatible with the operation of a desired image compression algorithm (14), thereby reducing the amount of memory required by the image compression algorithm.